

Cor van der Meer

Dr. Cor van der Meer studied sociology and research methodology at the University of Groningen. He works as project manager for the Fryske Akademy in Leeuwarden, the Netherlands and is head of the Mercator Research Centre on Multilingualism and Language Learning which is a platform for Regional and Minority Languages in Europe, serving linguistic diversity. His expertise is in multilingualism policies, regional and minority language issues, language learning and language education. His work is often related to the goals and practices of a number of international organisations. He frequently presents his work at conferences and seminars, in Europe and beyond.