

MONICA BARNI

Monica Barni is full professor of Educational Linguistics at the Università per Stranieri of Siena. She currently coordinates the research line Foreign Languages in Italy at the University's Center of Excellence for Research. She is member of BILINGUISMO CONTA-NuoviCittadini, branch of BILINGUALISM MATTERS; President of the Belgian-registered association Tour4EU established in 2018 to foster synergies between the regional higher education system and Europe. Her research activity focus on teaching, learning and assessment of languages, in particular of Italian L2 in Italy and around the world; theoretical, methodological, and ethical issues in language testing and assessment; mapping immigrant languages in Italian society and schools; analysis and impact of national and European language policies. She has coordinated and participated in numerous regionally, nationally, and European funded research projects on the above themes.